Made Dudy Satyawan, Rohmawati Kusumaningtias, Susi Handayani
Universitas Negeri Surabaya

Abstract

The growth of internet usage and website-based applications at this time has grown rapidly almost touching all aspects of the life of the world community. The digital ecosystem roadmap in Indonesia shows that the growth of e-commerce businesses during 2014 to 2018, averaged 17%. Unicorn-based startups such as Go-Jek, Traveloka, Tokopedia, and Bukalapak have valuations above US $ 1 Billion. However, this potential has a negative impact such as increasing cybercrime. The development of cybercrime fosters the responsibility of the accountant profession to develop accounting and audit systems with the aim of detecting, deterring, and preventing the potential for cybercrime within an organization or society. This process will have an impact on the roles, responsibilities, authorities, and obligations of the accounting profession. The introduction of effective policies, procedures and audit tools can help mitigate organizational risk and maximize audit effectiveness. Accountants must also have strong knowledge of information systems and computer technology to carry out ongoing control and supervision and to detect and prevent cyber crime. This article will explore the readiness of the accounting profession in dealing with cyber crime.

Maya Mustika Kartika Sari, Rr. Nanik Setyowati, Agus SatmokoAdi

Abstract

The development of education in Indonesia cannot be separated from the influence of the development of science and technology. The result of this evolution of technology (especially information) is digitalization. The digital age has changed the social life order that Clayton Christensen calls this the era of disruption. This fact is also supported by the spirit of freedom and democratization in various fields of life. This has an impact on the education sector, especially in the cultivation of moral values and the building of national character. Serious and planned efforts are needed to prepare the young generation to deal with it. One character that needs to be strengthened is a democratic character. There are four main values in the democratic character, namely honesty, responsibility, independence, and caring. This article intends to study the problem in a theoretical and empirical framework.
