The email is addressed to Seyed Morteza Tayebl, Managing Editor of Annals of Applied Sport Science. Ali Maksum expresses gratitude for accepting his article and asks for an explanation and understanding regarding the article fee. He mentions that on his private page, the fee was $385, but another invoice says $550. He attributes this to the COVID-19 pandemic's impact in Indonesia and requests a 50% or more fee reduction. Dear Seyed Morteza Tayebl
Managing Editor Annals of Applied Sport Science

Thank you very much for accepting my article, but I wanted to ask you explanation and understanding. First, on my private page, I've checked my article invoice for $385, but on another invoice, it says $550. Why can this happen? Second, because of the Covid-19 pandemic, which has had a tremendous impact in Indonesia until now, I would like to apply for an article fee reduction of 50% or more. Thank you for your understanding and attention.

Sincerely yours
Ali Maksum

Dear Prof. Maksum

the Invoice of the private page was for Iranian users when the journal's office was in Iran and they had a special discount at that time, this page doesn't work at this time.

based on the cover letter in which we prepared the related links, the publication fee is 550 USD.
you signed it. we have three pages on the journal website in which we declared this publication fee.

Dear Corresponding author,

The next step in the publication process is reviewing the galley proof of your article for the very last time before final publication. Please return the checked galley proofs via e-mail (scientificacms@gmail.com) within 48 hours of receipt. Late return of galley proofs may mean postponement to a later issue. In this step you can change little mistakes and extensive alteration may require Editorial Board approval, possibly delaying publication.

Please follow these guidelines when reviewing the galley proofs:

- Highlight your corrections, directly on the electronic galley proofs using Adobe Acrobat Commenting System. Writing modification in a separate file or in Email is not acceptable. Make sure that your corrections are noticeable and easy to understand.
 - Check the title, the abbreviations list, and the author-paper documentation paragraph.
 - Check the table data against that in your original tables.
 - Check any equations against those in your original manuscript. Make sure special characters have not dropped out.
 - Check to be sure that figures are entirely legible, including any small-print text.
 - If you find an error, look again at the lines around the error. Mistakes tend to cluster.

Submission of Final Proof Corrections
The next step in the publication process is to submit finally checked galley proof. Please send checked PDF file to scientificacms@gmail.com

Note: If you are completely SATISFIED from the final proof, just inform the Editorial Office about your satisfaction via e-mail. Only on the receipt of your final satisfaction opinion, the Editorial Office will send your article for final publication.

Many Thanks
