Decision: Major revisions required

The study " A Theoretical thought of Legal Regulation of Halal Food" sought to develop a theoretical perspective on the legal regulation of halal food in Indonesia . Halal food groups effectively raise the standard of living of Muslims and other communities that purchase halal food. This study was based on secondary data culled from prior studies and subjected to extensive analysis to determine a theoretical concept of legal control of halal cuisine in Indonesia . The study suggests that legislative control of halal food in Indonesia is necessary because the Muslim community only purchases halal cuisine. In addition, this study indicates that regulatory authorities should focus on developing measures to combat unethical practices successfully . It is a very well written article. Overall there are a few things that need step-wise improvement to make this work publishable.

1. The introduction of the paper is very short, and it is not catchy to attract the attention of the readers. Additionally, the contributions that the authors wanted to make are not clear enough. It further needs a consolidated presentation and explanation

2. Throughout the literature section, the authors used similar research results to the existing research when they elaborated on their hypothesis without logical arguments. That weakens the arguments, and the current arguments are not persuasive enough to convince the readers that this paper has contributions. So please rewrite the hypotheses parts with more logical supports. Also, add a separate subsection for Food Regulation in Indonesia and Public Health Department and Food Policies.
 3. Methodologically this study utilized secondary data derived from prior studies, publications, and case studies. In this regard, the method of analysis was chosen.
 4. The results are well presented. However, it is good to add a table presenting Registered Halal Products in the Different States of Indonesia.
 5. The discussion and conclusion are also presented well. However, there is still room for improvement. There is a need to present detailed implications with limitations and future directions.
 6. Authors should double-check their citations and match them with the end-text references. Moreover, there is a need to follow the APA 7th edition to record all the references in this study. Also, there is a need to add DOIs for all the references.

Decision: Major revisions required

- a. The start of the paper is not catchy and grabs the readers' attention; there must be a systematic flow of information in the introduction. The introduction of the topic is very brief. A detailed introduction is required to better understand the research gap and research problem as to how does it emerge from prior research in this field? What did we know about it before this study was done? How can this study advance our knowledge in this area?
- b. The literature review needs to be much more clearly written. The ideas are there, but they need to be explained further, and the ideas need to be more clearly linked together. An in-depth literature review is required to build a hypothesis with a clear understanding of the main concepts. Particularly authors should add subsections for the explanation of the main ideas.
- c. The method section needs to be clearer.
- d. I encourage the authors to share some more details/statics regarding the customers in Bali in the results section.
- e. The discussion section is merged with research implications by just being confined to the study novelty, which is not actually that novel. There is a need to discuss the study results in detail independent of implications, clearly stating the significance of the results and their applicability as per the study context with specific examples from the hotel industry practices in the country. There is also a need to identify potential future research areas.
- f. The authors should thoroughly follow the journal guidelines for quoting full-text citations.
